SB 1055 Rowden

Modifies provisions relating to elementary and secondary education

Only the section that applies to students with disabilities is included.

This act requires a school district to retain any student in grade three who has been determined as not reading at grade level by the end of such student's third-grade year.

Under current law, for each student whose third-grade reading assessment determines that such student is reading below second-grade level, the school district is required to design a reading improvement plan for the student's fourth-grade year. Current law also permits the school district to require such student to attend summer school as a condition of promotion to the fourth grade.

Under this act, beginning with the school year 2022-2023, any student whose second-grade reading assessment determines that such student is reading below second-grade level shall have a reading improvement plan for the student's third-grade year. This act also repeals the provision allowing the school district to require summer school as a condition of promotion to the fourth grade.

Each student for whom a reading improvement plan has been designed shall be given another reading assessment within 45 days of the end of the student's third-grade year, rather than at the end of such student's fourth-grade year. If such student is determined to be reading below third-grade level, the student shall not be promoted to the fourth grade. Any student retained in third grade shall be referred for an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) and the district shall provide appropriate intensive structured literacy instruction on a one-to-one individualized basis. If the student does not qualify for an IEP under the state guidelines for qualification, the student shall continue to receive appropriate intensive structured literacy instruction on a one-to-one individualized basis until the student is reading at grade level.

SB 1061 Libla

This act modifies current law regarding reading success plans, formerly known as reading intervention plans

This act requires the State Board of Education to align literacy and reading instruction course work for teacher education programs in early childhood, kindergarten through fifth grade elementary teacher certification, middle school communication arts, high school communication arts, and all reading and special education certificates to include certain components set forth in the act.

The State Board, in collaboration with the Coordinating Board for Higher Education and the Literacy Advisory Council established in the act, shall develop a plan to establish a comprehensive system of services for early education.

Under current law, each local school district shall have on file a policy for reading success plans for any pupils of the districts in grades kindergarten through three. Such plans shall identify strategies to be followed by the district teachers to raise students' reading ability to grade level. This act repeals such requirements, and only requires school districts and charter schools to have on a file a policy for reading success plans.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, rather than the State Board, shall develop guidelines to assist districts and charter schools in formulating policies for reading success plans. Such guidelines may include measures of reading proficiency, strategies for addressing reading deficiencies, and targeted instruction for students with characteristics of dyslexia and other reading deficiencies.

This act repeals the provision of current law requiring each school district enrolling a student reading below grade level to develop an individual plan of reading intervention for such pupil. Under this act, each school district and charter school shall provide supplemental reading instruction to students as set forth in the act.

Each school district and charter school shall, under this act, provide training on the administration and analysis of results of reading assessments to all kindergarten through fifth grade teachers and any other personnel who provide literacy instruction.

Current law provides that, unless a student has been determined in the current school year to be reading at grade level or above, a school district shall administer a reading assessment within 45 days of the end of the third-grade year. Under this act, unless such student has been determined in the current or previous school year to be reading at grade level or above, a school district or charter school shall administer a reading assessment within the first 45 days of school for grades one through five, and by January 1 for kindergarten students.

Current law requires such reading assessment for students who enter a school district in grades four, five, or six. Under this act, such assessment shall be required in grades one through five.

The provisions of current law requiring school districts to design a reading improvement plan for certain students are repealed under this act.

School districts and charter school shall, under this act, develop and implement a reading success plan for each student in grades kindergarten through five who exhibits a reading deficiency, as defined in the act. The reading success plan shall provide for additional targeted reading instruction that occurs in addition to the core reading instruction provided to all students in the general education classroom. The act sets forth several methods of identification of students who need a reading success plan.

A reading success plan shall be developed by the student's teacher and other pertinent school personnel, and shall provide an opportunity for the parent or legal guardian to provide input.

Reading intervention instruction and strategies provided under a reading success plan shall meet certain criteria set forth in the act.

School districts and charter schools shall continue to address reading deficiencies for a student in grades six through twelve who exhibit a reading deficiency, for such time as the deficiency in reading ability creates a barrier to the student's success in school.

Current law requires school districts to offer summer school reading instruction to any student with a reading improvement plan. This act repeals the provision requiring school districts to offer summer school reading instruction, and provides that school districts and charter schools may offer summer school reading instruction.

This act repeals provisions relating to retention of students.

The provisions of this section shall become effective on July 1, 2021.

This act requires the Commissioner of Education to establish a literacy advisory council, which shall consist of at least 12 and no more than 20 members as set forth in the act.

The council shall meet biannually to review best practices in literacy instruction and related policy provisions, and shall periodically provide recommendations to the Commissioner and the State Board regarding any identified improvements to literacy instruction and policy for Missouri students.

Modifies provisions governing workers' compensation

Under current law, the extension of premises doctrine is abrogated to the extent it extends liability for accidents that occur on property not owned or controlled by an employer even if the accident occurs on customary, approved, permitted, usual or accepted routes used by the employee to get to and from their place of employment. This act removes the requirement that the property be controlled by an employer.

The act requires the accident of an occupational disease to be the prevailing factor in causing the injury and medical condition and the prevailing factor in the need for treatment.

Under current law, no savings or insurance of the injured employee, nor any benefits derived from any other source than the employer or the employer's insurer for liability under this chapter, shall be considered in determining the compensation due to the employee. This act provides that such sums may be considered in considering compensation due. Additionally, if medical bills are in dispute, the administrative law judge shall have the authority to order the employer to be responsible for medical benefits to the satisfaction of the medical provider.

Modifies provisions for eligibility verification for MO HealthNet

This bill requires the Department of Social Services to use state and federal data matches to verify eligibility for programs. Income, resources, and assets will be reviewed individually and each member of a family will be reviewed individually if a family member is deemed ineligible. It also includes information regarding who is allowed to update contact information and how quickly it must be updated. If someone is deemed to be ineligible because contact information is not updated, the individual will be reinstated immediately and the Department is responsible for any care charges from the time of ineligibility to reinstatement. For MO HealthNet the Department will use the eligibility redetermination and renewal process which already exists in statute unless this bill states otherwise.
